“What fatal weakness hers, that she will hear,
Alike above the lilting of the dance,
Or in the crashing of the gods we rear,
Some hint or fevered whisper of romance.

However bitter be the love she knows,
And buried deep the petaled hopes that fell,
There is a tristful stirring in the snows
At ev’ry ringing of a wedding bell.”
(Collected Poems)

The setting and lighting were executed from designs of the director by John
Toscano, Dale McDevell, Kaye Rita Taggart, Melyne McGaffey, Leona Lange, Bill
Blair, Patricia Mahon, Gerald Stranahan, Rudolph Stranahan, Bonnie Erickson, Mark
Goodbody and Rosemary Vandenberg.

(Special acknowledgments to Mrs. Jodie Fitch for pieces of furniture; Kassis for Mrs. Milstead's Act II costume.)

The University Theatre is happy to announce its four major productions for next season. They are: Goodbye My Fancy, The Kiosk, The First Tower, and A Midsummer Night's Dream.

Season books will be on sale after September 25.
